

Advancing Knowledge for Sustainability —

Research and dialogue on the big questions of our time

We develop scientific foundations and forward-looking concepts for socio-ecological transformations.

We research and communicate on the topics of biodiversity, climate adaptation, land use, mobility, pollutant risks, sufficiency, water, knowledge, and participation.

The Institute for Social-Ecological Research (ISOE) is a leading institute for sustainability research based in Frankfurt am Main.

Together with our partners in science and society, we create spaces for change towards sustainability.

Would you like to find out more about us and be invited to events?

Visit us online and subscribe to our newsletter.

www.isoe.de

